

The DOWNFAL OF THE WHIGGS:

Or, Their Lamentation for Fear of A Loyal Parliament.

To the Tune of, Patrick Flemmen he was a Valiant Souldier.

I.

Didst ever see the like, dear Brother,
Our Saints they are falling all together?
The Presbyter, Pendant, and Quaker,
We've neither Hopes in the House, nor Speaker!

II.

The Torys Drink to the Confusion
Of our Damn'd Members for the Exclusion;
And Curfes our Affiliation,
Z—s, let us run quite out of the Nation.

III.

How durst they make L'Estrange a Member!
Our Mortal Foe, and bold Offender?
Whom our late Parli'ment Attempted,
They'd Hang'd him if he had not prevented.

IV.

At Westminster under our Noses,
Our numerous Whiggs o're Powers Opposes,
And by two Thousand Votes Out-pol'd Us,
The Devil I am sure, hath forfook or sold Us!

V.

Shall the Saints who used to have the Glories,
To Vote and Spew out all the Torys,
The King no Money must have, they agreed on't
Unless he'll pawn his Crown and Head on't!

VI.

This Parl'ment will give us Caution
As formerly, to mind ev'ry Motion;
But if th' Old Cause should be Over-ruled,
They must expect by the Rent for to be Schooled.

VII.

York and Durham, Oxford, Cambridge,
Glocester, Winchester, with Advantage;
Nay, every County and Corporation,
And the Devil a Word of Arbitration.

VIII.

Dangerfield in the Name of Monmouth,
Used to Knight Men, now's in the Dungeon;
Him we sav'd to save Oats our Father,
But now we fear they'll Hang both together.

IX.

Now to save our Saints from Disasters,
We'll Snugg in the Bosoms of our Sisters;
If the Parli'ment send for to Gail us,
Their Smocks our Surplis, none shall Unvail us.
